

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting,

touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, "Ephphatha - Be opened."

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting,

touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting,

touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting,

touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.

Be Opened September 5, 2021

Our Savior's Way Lutheran Church

Pastor Tyson Labuhn

Grace, mercy, and peace to you from God our Father and our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Amen.

There's a story of a family that went to a restaurant. They were seated, and the waitress came over and saw their little boy, who was keeping himself busy by coloring on the paper menu. It seemed that she was more interested in the little boy than the rest of his family. She said to him, "What would you like to have?" Somewhat surprised, the little boy looked up at her with a grin and said, "I'll have some french fries and a milkshake." But his mother interrupted him saying to the waitress, "He'll have a small piece of salmon with some carrots and broccoli instead..." Much to the surprise of both the mother and the boy, the waitress ignored her and asked the boy, "What kind of milkshake would you like?" The boy said to her, "Chocolate!" Then the waitress asked the boy, "Would you like ketchup for your fries?" The boy shouted back, "Yes, ketchup, lots of ketchup." Then the boy turned to his parents and with a big smile said, "I like her, she thinks I'm real!" And when you're open to listening and really hearing someone, their perspective might become more real to you!

Jesus had heard the Pharisees and scribes from Jerusalem. He had declared that all foods were clean and He had traveled into Gentile territory. It was there that He listened to a Syrophoenician woman, and after hearing her, healed

her daughter. And it's after this that our Gospel reading in St. Mark begins. Jesus was taking the long way home. As He made His way back to Galilee He came from the region of Tyre, going through Sidon to the Sea of Galilee in the region of the Decapolis, mostly Gentile regions. It was there, in the region of the Decapolis, that a man was brought before Him. While our text doesn't tell us who begged Jesus to lay His hands on the man with a couple of disabilities. This man had a speech impediment that prevented him from expressing himself verbally, or if he could, it was with great difficulty, and the man was also unable to hear. Instead of laying His hands on the man, Jesus decided to take the man aside from the crowd privately. And as our text tells us, He placed His fingers in the man's ears and after spitting touched his tongue. He looked up to heaven and sighed, before saying to the man in Aramaic, "Ephphatha" which our text translates for us as "Be opened."

Did you hear the story of the man who went to his doctor about his loss of hearing? The doctor prescribed him a tiny hearing aid that essentially cured the man's disability. So, when he came back to the doctor weeks later and the doctor asked him if his family was thrilled by his ability to hear, the man answered, "Well, I didn't tell them. Instead, I sat around as before and listen. And so far, I've changed my will three times!"

Of course, Jesus didn't have to do anything to heal the man. Scripture tells us that He healed people without touching them or being in their presence. So that the man might understand that He was going to heal him, Jesus placed His fingers in the man's ears and, after spitting, touched his tongue. While some commentators go so far as to say it was a kind of sign language, I think that Jesus was compassionately sharing with the man how He was going to heal him so that the man could be free from his disabilities of not being able to hear or speak the way he wanted.

You know, you and I might not think of ourselves as having a disability because we love hearing the sound of your own voice. So much so that when we listen to others, we're usually thinking about what we're going to say as soon as the other person stops. And yet, if we truly want to be heard in this world, we need to be truly listening. Not only listening to those around us, but most importantly, listening to the One who can make the difference in our lives and in the lives of those around us.

You see, Jesus Christ came that He might love, cleanse, and heal not just us, but all people. In doing so, He willingly gave His very life on the cross to pay for the sins of the whole world. Your sins, my sins, all sins were placed on Him and He died with them. And having been raised to new life, He alone gives us the healing that we need to be free from our disabilities. Free from sin, death, and the devil so that we might be opened up once again to the new life that He came to bring.

Did you know that someone once said that when Martin Luther was putting together a baptismal liturgy back in 1523, he encouraged pastors to take some of their own saliva and touch the ears and lips of those being baptized? Apparently, the instant the pastor touched the child, He was to repeat what Jesus said, “Ephphatha - Be opened.”

While the idea sounds scriptural, for some reason, we don't do that during the rite of Holy Baptism. And don't worry, I'm not going to start doing it either. But it is true that even during baptism, the Word of God comes to us and we're encouraged to take hold of what is good, to love more freely, to support those who are weak, and to strengthen the faint-hearted so that we might honor all people. Because it comes about by the power of the Holy Spirit, who sometimes uses parents, grandparents, sponsors, pastors, and others, to compassionately help us not to be so bound up with our own lives and getting tongue-tied when we go to share our faith.

This is also part of the work of the church. Because, it's not just about having your name on a church membership list or checking the box on Sunday morning to say that you were here, but rather, it's about truly listening to God's Word, allowing it to change you so that it might allow you to speak in ways that are pleasing to God. No longer allowing sin to encumber you, but repenting of sin, and allowing His Spirit to lead in becoming more effective at witnessing and sharing the Good News of Jesus – through words and actions – to those around us, regardless of where they live or have come from. For that to happen, you need to be opened.

And as we do that together, by the power of the Holy Spirit, we just might continue to fulfill our mission of Our Savior's Way. Which is to glorify God and make disciples for Jesus by: Forming relationships, Experiencing Jesus together, and Sharing God's Love.

In Jesus' name, Amen.